1 INTRODUCTION

This document sets out the strategy and actions planned to be undertaken in the context of preparing the “ex post evaluation of the Trade Agreement between the EU and its Members States, and Colombia, Peru and Ecuador”, which is undertaken by a team led by BKP Economic Advisors GmbH (BKP). The document has been prepared based on an initial consultations plan presented by BKP as part of the proposal for the study, and takes into account the outline consultation strategy included in the Commission’s Evaluation Roadmap,¹ as well as the work undertaken during the study’s inception phase. The consultation strategy is also based on the guidelines for consultations as set out in Chapter VIII of the European Commission’s Better Regulation toolbox² as well as the Commission’s minimum standards for consultation of interested parties.³

This document describes the consultation objectives and scope (section 2), the identification of key stakeholders in the EU and the three partner countries (section 3), as well as the various planned consultation means and activities (section 4), the planned schedule for the consultation activities (section 5), and the planned reporting on the consultation activities and feedback received (section 6).

2 CONSULTATION OBJECTIVES AND SCOPE

2.1 Consultation objectives

The consultations are an important element of the evaluation because they contribute significantly to its transparency and participatory nature. This requires that stakeholders are provided with information, and consulted, at each stage of the analysis, thereby strengthening the legitimacy of the study and its findings and recommendations.

The main objectives of the consultations therefore are:

- To inform stakeholders about the conduct of the evaluation and its findings and recommendations, allowing stakeholders to provide their inputs to the evaluation and views about the Agreement;
- To contribute to the identification of possible economic, social, environmental and human rights impacts of the Agreement;
- To contribute to the identification of sectors and groups which have benefited or have been negatively affected as a result of the implementation of the Agreement;
- To analyse the reasons for such effects; and
- To contribute to the identification and the conduct of the case studies.

Consultations are based on the following underlying principles: The first is that various consultation components are aimed at presenting (draft) results and holding them up against stakeholder scrutiny and feedback. The second is that consultation efforts are designed to draw in knowledge, understanding and on-the-ground experience of key stakeholders – this information will be used as input in the various analytical components of the study. The third is the emphasis on an open and transparent process where results are not carved in stone, but draft outcomes and findings are openly and transparently discussed – whereby the discussions are transparently noted down and reported also.

2.2 Consultation scope

The scope of the consultations is based on the above objectives as well as the scope of the study itself.

In terms of the technical scope, consultations address all matters covered by the Agreement, with a particular focus on the specific issues covered by the evaluation framework, as described in the main body of the inception report.

In terms of timing, consultations will take place during the entire duration of the evaluation; some preliminary consultations of stakeholders have already taken place during the inception phase, and they will continue until the discussion of the draft final evaluation report.

With regard the geographical scope, this is in principle universal, i.e. communication with stakeholders from anywhere will be part of the activities, (for example via the website and via other electronic means of communication). At the same time, more in-depth consultations will be held with stakeholders in the EU and in the three partner countries – with a particular effort in Colombia, Ecuador and Peru to involve stakeholders from outside the capitals of the three countries.

Regarding the stakeholders to be consulted, again the scope of the consultations is universal and non-exclusive. Nevertheless, similar to the geographical scope, key stakeholders are distinguished from other stakeholders, and may play a more active role in consultations. Key stakeholders are those who have been involved in the negotiation, implementation and/or monitoring of the Agreement, those that could have been affected by the Agreement – irrespective of their access opportunities to the consultations – and those that will have expressed an interest (e.g. by getting in touch with the study team) in the evaluation. The following section provides more detail regarding the identification of stakeholders.

3 IDENTIFICATION AND MAPPING OF KEY STAKEHOLDERS

3.1 Stakeholder Identification

The first step that is needed when carrying out a high-quality and inclusive consultation process is to identify the key stakeholders in the EU and partner countries that we need to engage with. For the purposes of this evaluation, we take “key stakeholders to mean those who could be affected by, are interested in, or are in any way related to implementing and/or monitoring the Agreement, irrespective of their access opportunities to the consultations.

The groups of key stakeholders identified are the following:

- Business representatives – both business associations, such as chambers of commerce or sectoral organisations, and individual companies, including SMEs – in the EU and the partner countries;⁴

⁴ Potentially, stakeholders in countries competing with partner countries (e.g. other Latin American countries, banana-producing ACP countries or LDCs) might also be included. A selective approach for this will be taken to avoid inflating the database, e.g. by consulting third country stakeholders only in the context of specific case studies. This remains to be further developed as the study progresses. Note that stakeholders in the EU Outermost Regions are included among the EU stakeholders.

- Social partners (employer associations and workers' organisations/trade unions) both in the EU and the Andean partner countries;
- Non-governmental organisations (NGOs) and civil society representatives – including consumer organisations – in the EU and the partner countries, covering the economic, social, environmental, and human rights issues;
- (Academic) experts from the EU and partner countries, as well as those working on trade and development issues in general;
- International organisations that could provide important inputs and angles, such as inter alia the ILO and UN, including relevant monitoring bodies, WTO, UNCTAD, ITC, UN Global Compact and others;
- Representatives of public administration (government, legislatures, and authorities/agencies) involved in the implementation of the Agreement;
- Representatives of EU institutions and Member States public administrations involved in the implementation of the Agreement;
- Vulnerable groups (e.g. women, youth, indigenous people, migrant workers and marginalised groups) that might have been affected directly locally by the Agreement and run the risk of being excluded from the consultations.

An initial database of stakeholders has been prepared during the inception phase based on the following sources and activities:

- For EU stakeholders, the basis for the list was an existing database developed in the context of previous similar studies (sustainability impact assessments and support studies for Commission impact assessments);
- This has been complemented by a review of stakeholders listed in relevant reports and documents, as well as invitation lists for recent trade-related workshops in the partner countries; for EU stakeholders, responses to recent consultations and CSD meetings on issues related to trade with Latin America (such as in the context of negotiations with Chile, Mexico or MERCOSUR) have also been used;
- The EU Delegations as well as the members of the evaluation team based in the three partner countries – the Universidad del Rosario (Bogotá, Colombia), the Universidad San Francisco de Quito (Ecuador), and the Instituto de Estudios Peruanos (Lima, Peru) – have added stakeholders to the list based on their local knowledge.

The initial list of key stakeholders identified so far is provided in Annex A (excluding EU institutions, and national governments and public institutions both in the EU and EU Member States, and the Andean partner countries). Table 1 provides an overview of the current status by type of stakeholder and location.

Table 1: Composition of identified stakeholders in partner countries and the EU (number of entities in database)

Type of stakeholder	EU	Colombia	Ecuador	Peru	Total
Civil society (including academia and think tanks)	91	20	15	31	157
Private sector	277	73	78	60	488
Social partners	35	9	7	10	61
Total	403	102	100	101	706

Note: Public sector institutions/governments are not listed here. EU institutions, EU Member States, and partner country governments will also be consulted.

Source: Compiled by study team.

Additional stakeholders will continue to be identified as the evaluation work progresses. In particular, based on the CGE results additional efforts will be made to identify stakeholders in sectors where the more pronounced effects of Agreement are found. Additional stakeholders will also be identified in the context of the proposed case studies. Last but not least, stakeholders registering through the website or other means will continuously be added to the database and will be kept informed of the evaluation activities and progress.

3.2 Stakeholder Mapping

Stakeholder mapping especially in the partner countries is important to increase the effectiveness of stakeholder consultations. Mapping of stakeholders deepens our understanding of how certain weaknesses and imbalances may affect civil society inputs. It enables us to take corrective measures by highlighting where we need to put extra efforts to obtain views and inputs that are important for the study. In this context, ensuring fair and balanced access to consultations is important.

The mapping exercise covers the following elements:

- Identification among the “universe of stakeholders” the main ones for each of the different dimensions of the evaluation – this is based on the expected level of the effect which the Agreement may have had on different groups;
- Identification of gaps in stakeholder organisation – i.e. are there groups on which the Agreement has had a notable effect but which have no representative body?
- Determination of past levels of activity of stakeholders in the public debate, as well as their resources, based on knowledge of the local evaluation team members;
- Determination of the relations between stakeholders, i.e. the degree to which they work together (or not);
- Assessment of stakeholders’ participation in the implementation and monitoring of the Agreement and, previously, the Agreement negotiations; and
- Generally, determination of the stakeholder engagement culture in the country and what opportunities and risks can be identified.

The findings regarding these elements will be used to identify both those stakeholders that are likely to play an active role in the consultations (i.e. the influential stakeholders), and those on which the Agreement may have had strong effects (positive or negative) and who will have to be approached by the evaluation team even though they may have a low level of organisation.

As the necessary information for some of the elements listed above remains to be determined in the evaluation desk phase, the stakeholder mapping is still ongoing. The results will be presented, for each of the partner countries, as part of the interim report.

4 CONSULTATION ACTIVITIES

The consultation activities are grouped into five consultation “pillars”, characterised by different target groups and channels used:

- Pillar 1: Meetings with EU civil society (civil society dialogue, CSD, meetings);
- Pillar 2: Online public consultation;
- Pillar 3: Targeted consultation tools, in particular workshops in partner countries, an online survey for businesses (including SMEs) in the EU and partner countries, and interviews and meetings with stakeholders in the EU and partner countries;
- Pillar 4: Meetings with EU institutions;
- Pillar 5: Digital engagement with stakeholders and interested persons in general, through website and electronic communication channels

The feasibility of direct (personal) consultations with stakeholders under pillars 1 and 3 will be assessed based on developments regarding the coronavirus pandemic, and if needed alternative means of consultations (webinars, conference calls and/or written consultations) may have to be used, along with a stronger reliance on interviews held by local experts if international travel will not be possible – in particular of stakeholders in rural areas which may not have access to reliable internet. The situation is being monitored, and decisions will be taken in consultation with the Commission.

Compliance with the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) will be ensured across all consultation activities. This implies that only personal data strictly needed for the study purposes will be collected and that any personal data will:

- Be securely stored;
- Be used only for the purposes of the consultations within the study;
- Be made available to study team members only on a need-to-know basis, and will not be made available to third parties except where this is legally required or the person has given his or her prior consent.

The personal data protection policy, including the contact for queries or complaints, is available on the study website, and any communications with stakeholders will refer to it.

The following sections provide more details about each of the pillars and activities.

4.1 Pillar 1: Civil Society Dialogue meetings

Meetings with EU civil society centre around presenting ongoing work and discussing the work with civil society in Brussels, as part of DG Trade's CSD, a system of regular meetings where civil society and the Commission discuss about the EU's trade policy.⁵

It is planned to hold CSD meetings at three stages of the evaluation:

- Presentation of the draft evaluation methodology: this is planned for early July 2020, most likely in virtual form;
- Presentation and discussion of the interim report, tentatively scheduled for January 2021; and
- Discussion of the draft final report – tentatively scheduled for April 2021.

To ensure that meetings are effective in presenting the ongoing study work, receiving feedback and using this feedback to further improve and advance the work, draft reports for the second and third meeting will be published at least 1-2 weeks ahead of the meeting in order for the participants to have sufficient time to prepare and study the materials.

4.2 Pillar 2: Online public consultation

The parameters for the online public consultation (OPC) are clearly specified in the ToR, notably:

- The OPC will be hosted by the Commission on the EUSurvey portal;⁶
- It will be open for at least 12 weeks;
- Questionnaires will be made available in English, Spanish, French and German, with translations from English into the other languages to be made by the Commission;
- The preparation of the questionnaire as well as the analysis of responses will be made by the evaluation team.

Given that this consultation is aimed at a wide audience (the general public) but at the same time should cover all evaluation criteria and impact dimensions, a particular challenge is to balance the desire for obtaining as much information as possible and the limited willingness of respondents to fill in long and complex questionnaires (and open questions). We address this by reducing the number of questions that any respondent will have to answer as much as possible by using a "smart" survey approach, where responses provided to certain questions influence the selection of follow up questions, and by limiting open questions to the extent possible.

⁶ <https://ec.europa.eu/eusurvey/home/welcome>.

The specific activities related to the OPC are as follows:

- Draft questionnaires for the survey have been prepared in Word-compatible format (see Annex B);
- The next version of the questionnaire, incorporating comments received to the annexed draft, will be prepared directly in EUSurvey, and be tested by a number of team members and Commission staff prior to finalisation;
- The final questionnaire will then be translated into Spanish, French and German by the Commission, directly in EUSurvey;
- Launch of the OPC is planned for September 2020;
- Stakeholders listed in the database will be informed about the public consultation through the email newsletter (see section 4.5.3), and the consultation will also be featured on the study website. In addition, we will encourage the stakeholders we meet in interviews, meetings and workshops to participate in the survey. This is to broaden dissemination of the consultation to as many stakeholders as possible and ensure a high number of responses;
- Upon completion of the consultation period, the evaluation team will analyse the responses provided and incorporate the results in the quantitative and qualitative analysis. A separate section with a statistical analysis of the survey will be prepared in the consultations report, while incorporating the main findings into the analysis presented in the main body of the study. Original responses will be provided to the Commission; responses in Spanish will not be translated but those provided in other languages will be translated into English.

In addition to the OPC (and running simultaneously), a more targeted survey for businesses, including SMEs will be carried out (see section 4.3.2).

4.3 Pillar 3: Targeted consultation activities

4.3.1 Workshops in partner countries

An important consultation part – also because on its margins we carry out in-depth interviews – are the workshops in the partner countries. Workshops are excellent opportunities to present draft findings to a wide range of partner country stakeholders and get feedback from them; the main goal of a workshop is to encourage an open discussion and exchange of ideas with a diverse set of stakeholders including business, social partners, civil society organisations, international organisations with presence in the partner country, and academics and think tanks. The media would also be invited.

In terms of timing, we propose to organise the workshops after the initial evaluation work based on desk research has been prepared, as that would allow us to already present some initial findings while being early enough in the process to adequately reflect stakeholder contributions made at the workshop during the subsequent analysis. The proposed timing of the workshops is thus the period between late September to November 2020.

In this section, we explain in detail how we plan to carry out this part of the consultations (excluding purely operational and logistical tasks, such as those related to the booking of the venue, catering, equipment rental, hiring of interpreters, and supporting sponsored participants, the conditions for which are clearly mentioned in the ToR).

Workshop Target Group and Participants

A wide range of stakeholders is planned to participate in the workshops; at the same time, capacity at the workshops will be limited (to about 50 persons). As a result, in order to achieve a balanced and representative participation the evaluation team will consider an appropriate diversity in terms of types of stakeholders, sectors, interest in different topics, and regions. Appropriate levels of participation by women and stakeholders in risk of exclusion will also be ensured, including through according preference to them for funded spots. (In principle, funded spots will be allocated on a first come first serve basis.)

To achieve a broadly based participation, we will start to reach out to stakeholders as soon as the date of the workshop is fixed. This will be done via the various communications channels outlined in this strategy. Also, although we do not expect many EU stakeholders to be travelling to the partner countries and be present, we will ask them to alert their counterparts and/or networks to the upcoming workshop.

In line with the ToR, a draft list of participants will be submitted to the EU Delegation in the partner country (for approval of sponsored participants).

Workshop Content and Programme

A tentative overall agenda for the main workshop is shown in Box 1; this will be further developed, and invited speakers be identified, in cooperation with the EU Delegation in the partner country.

The workshops will be held in English and Spanish, with simultaneous interpretation.

Workshop materials and documentation

In order for the workshops to be as effective as possible, we will prepare documentation ahead of the event and a welcome package for all participants. Pre-workshop documentation will be made available on the website as well as sent to confirmed participants and will include:

- The inception report;

- A summary of emerging evaluation findings;
- A document with links to other reports and research conducted regarding the Agreement (both in English and Spanish).

The welcome pack upon arrival will include the following documents:

- The executive summary of the inception report in both English and Spanish;
- The workshop agenda;
- Possibly printed questionnaires of the online surveys for participants to fill in during the workshop and to be collected before the closure of the workshop;
- A list of project team members with their contact details for further contact after the workshop;
- Practical details regarding venue, rooms, reimbursements (if applicable), etc.; and
- The workshop evaluation form.

During the workshop, we will take photographs, a selection of which will be sent to participants and be posted on the evaluation website and Twitter.

After the workshop, minutes containing the views expressed by the participants will be sent to participants and be published in English and Spanish. Furthermore, the evaluation report will explain how the views expressed during the workshop by civil society and other key stakeholders have been taken into account.

Regional workshops

In addition to the main workshops in Bogotá, Quito, and Lima, we also plan to organise at least one additional workshop outside of the capital in each country. This seems important in order to ensure inclusivity of the workshops especially given the geography (and associated cultural differences) in the partner countries between regions. It appears more effective and efficient for evaluation team members to travel to the regions rather than having a limited number of stakeholders travel to the capital. The regional workshops would mirror the organisation and structure of the main workshops, but they would be held exclusively in Spanish and be half-day workshops.

The suggested locations for the regional workshops are:

- Colombia: Barranquilla or Cartagena; possibly Pasto;
- Ecuador: Guayaquil;
- Peru: Piura.

4.3.2 Business survey

In addition to the OPC, which targets the general public, an online survey of the Agreement's impact on businesses, including (M)SMEs,⁷ will also be launched on EUSurvey. The process for designing and implementing the survey will follow the OPC, except that the business survey will be managed directly by the evaluation team; also, it will only be made available in English and Spanish, as previous experience in similar studies has shown that other languages are hardly if ever used by survey participants.

In terms of developing questions, the starting point have been recent business surveys which the consortium has undertaken as part of SIAs and those used in other recent ex post evaluations of EU trade agreements (e.g. EUROMED or CARIFORUM EPA).

The draft questionnaire is provided in Annex C.

⁷ Although generally the term "SME" is used, in effect MSMEs are covered.

The survey will address SME issues in two ways: first, respondents are asked to self-identify themselves as SMEs, and accordingly their responses will provide a first-hand view of the Agreement's practical effects and impacts on SMEs. Second, a section in the questionnaire is dedicated to the Agreement's general effects on SMEs.

Based on previous experience, intensive dissemination and promotion of the survey will be required to obtain a sufficiently high number of responses. In the partner countries, the workshops will constitute important occasions for such promotional activities, in addition to invitations through the online tools and meetings held. In the EU (as well as in Peru), the survey is planned to be promoted through the Enterprise Europe Network. The specifics still need to be discussed with the Commission.

4.3.3 Interviews and meetings

The purpose of the interviews and roundtables will be to obtain specific information and views from stakeholders to test and clarify initial findings from the desk research as well as to get feedback on preliminary recommendations. It is therefore planned to hold most interviews once initial findings from the research are available, i.e. from September 2020 onwards.

We plan to conduct a range of interviews, one-to-one and focus group meetings with public and private sector representatives and civil society organisations. These interviews will be conducted both in the EU and partner countries. While some time spent by EU study team members in partner countries is foreseen in the context of the national workshops, use of video-conferencing is planned on a large scale, both to save resources (time spent travelling, travel costs, carbon footprint), and to expand the outreach of interviews to more countries. The provision of written responses will also be possible, as experience has shown that particularly membership-based organisations often prefer to consult with their members and then provide an agreed response. Additional physical interviews and roundtables/focus group meetings in partner countries will be held by the national evaluation team members, depending on feasibility in view of the COVID-19 situation.

In total, we envisage to consult the following number of stakeholders through interviews and small group meetings:

- Stakeholders in EU countries: at least 30 (including written contributions);
- Stakeholders in partner countries to be visited/covered by local experts: at least 20 per country.

In-depth interviews and one-to-one meetings will be based on a structured questionnaire framework that will be constructed with inputs from the economic, social, environmental and human rights experts in both the EU and partner countries.

Participation in relevant events organised by other entities, such as bilateral chambers, etc. might also be considered. However, given the uncertain situation with regard to the planning of any events, due to the pandemic, no such meetings have at present been earmarked for participation by the study team.

4.4 Pillar 4: Consultations with EU institutions

Engaging closely with the European Commission and other EU institutions is an important part of the consultation process. Consultations will be held with the Commission, the European Parliament, the European Economic and Social Committee (EESC), and the EU Domestic Advisory Group (DAG) under the TSD chapter of the Agreement.

First meetings with the EESC and the EU DAG took place on 19 June 2020 (EESC) and 24 June 2020 (EU DAG).

Finally, meetings with the European Commission Inter-Service Steering Group (ISG) will be technical in nature, and will be more inward oriented and of a coordinative nature, rather than outward oriented towards civil society and other key stakeholders. These meetings will take place – once physical meetings resume – back-to-back with CSD meetings, at the stages mentioned above (i.e. draft interim, and draft final report).

4.5 Pillar 5: Dedicated website and other electronic communication

The establishment and continuous updating of a website, as well as ongoing electronic communications with stakeholders constitute the last pillar of the consultation strategy and will be used mostly for sharing and distributing information by the study team to stakeholders. During the inception phase, the website has been established and launched, and initial communication has been sent out to identified stakeholders. Electronic communication with stakeholders will take place through email newsletters as well as Twitter, using BKP's Twitter account.

4.5.1 Website

The main aim of the website is to provide relevant information about the evaluation – both in terms of process and outputs – to stakeholders, while also providing the opportunity to stakeholders to easily get in contact with the study team. The website was launched during the inception phase and is available at:

<http://www.fta-evaluation.eu> (also accessible at <http://andean.fta-evaluation.eu>)

It has the following characteristics and functionalities:

- It is fully bilingual (English/Spanish);
- It has been intentionally designed to be very simple and accessible, with few sections and without multiple layers that require clicking through various pages before one reaches the information needed;
- The front page (Figure 1) provides concise information about the evaluation, a timeline for its preparation, including the main consultation activities, and embedded Twitter account. The concise information can be accessed, with one click, in any of the EU official languages;
- A section where relevant documentation is (or will be) presented and stored, including the main deliverables of the study: the inception report, the interim report and the final report. Also, any presentations given will be provided here (pdf format). Other relevant information to help the reader put the study in a wider context (e.g. links to other studies and documents related to the Agreement) is already available on the website;
- A section presenting the consultations activities. This will be developed as further information about specific consultation activities becomes available:
 - The (upcoming and past) CSD events (also on the study calendar);
 - The national workshops (venue, agenda, how to register, etc.);
 - Links to the online surveys;
 - Contributions received from stakeholders in the consultations (where permission has been granted).
- A contact form where anyone can leave feedback (of any nature) regarding the study and the website.

The use of meta data (keywords and strings of words) will ensure that the website is found easily on search engines in order to increase visitor counts and further impact. The website address will also be promoted among a large range of stakeholders and partners.

Website use is being monitored through a visitor count.

4.5.2 Twitter

We intend to use Twitter throughout the evaluation for the following purposes:

- Announcing the (draft) findings and outputs of the evaluation as well as important milestones, such as the start or imminent closure of the online surveys, upcoming workshops and meetings, and directing followers to the website or relevant internet site (e.g. for the surveys);
- Informing followers about work/articles/postings related to the evaluation and EU-Colombia/Ecuador/Peru trade;
- At regular intervals, highlighting relevant quotes from the evaluation to keep the audience tuned in;
- Presenting the various consultation and outreach activities organised in the context of the study (e.g. country visits or the CSD events).

It has been decided to use BKP's Twitter account (@BKPEconAdvisors) for the purposes of the study. This decision has been taken as it allows more frequent tweets than would have been possible using the DG TRADE account, thereby ensuring "closer" interaction with stakeholders. This comes at the expense of lower outreach but to a focused group of subscribers. Increased outreach will be ensured through retweets by DG TRADE's twitter account of selected, particularly important tweets.

In order to increase outreach, all identified stakeholders have been contacted by email to inform them of the Twitter activities, inviting them to follow. This has been done as part of the first mailing. Furthermore, selected stakeholders will be asked to support our efforts by retweeting.

4.5.3 Email and electronic newsletter

Email is a useful complementary tool to reach specific stakeholders throughout the study. Through email, we will inform stakeholders of the events taking place, send questions, encourage stakeholders to send additional information and data, as well as policy positions, receive feedback and make appointments for in-depth interviews.

For keeping identified stakeholders – i.e. those in the stakeholder database – informed, email newsletters are a useful tool which we have used in other studies for DG TRADE. Such newsletters will be sent at the following stages of the study:

- Launch of the online public consultation;
- About 1-2 weeks prior to the closure of the online public consultation;
- Upon publication of the draft inception, interim and final reports (also informing about the subsequent CSD meetings); and
- Other major milestones or events in the course of the evaluation.

For email newsletters, we use a cloud-based newsletter app, hosted in Germany, which guarantees compliance with rules on the protection of personal data (i.e. in particular the GDPR). Newsletters will be used to promote the different elements of the consultation plan, inviting stakeholders to follow the Twitter messaging as well as to visit the evaluation website.

5 CONSULTATIONS SCHEDULE

The detailed work plan and schedule for the consultation activities is presented in Table 2.

6 REPORTING

While key findings from the consultations will be presented in the main evaluation report as part of the analysis, a separate consultations report will be prepared (and will become an appendix to the main study, and hence also be published). This will describe the implementation of the various consultation activities, including metrics such as the number of stakeholders interviewed/participating in roundtables; responses to the consultation received; website visitors; etc. It will also present the findings from the evaluation team's engagement with stakeholders across the five consultation pillars.

Original contributions provided by stakeholders will be made available, where consent has been given, on the evaluation website.

ANNEX B: QUESTIONNAIRE FOR ONLINE PUBLIC CONSULTATION

Public Consultation on the implementation and impact of the Trade Agreement between the EU and its Member States and Colombia, Peru and Ecuador

Standard questionnaire: DRAFT, 19 June 2020

A. Introduction

About the Trade Agreement

Since 2013, the European Union (EU) has a Trade Agreement with Colombia and Peru in place, which Ecuador joined in 2017. The Agreement gradually opens up markets on both sides and increases the stability and predictability of the trade and investment environment. It is also one of the first “new generation” trade agreements of the EU, characterised by their comprehensive scope. In addition to liberalisation of trade in goods and services, the Agreement covers investment, public procurement, competition, intellectual property rights, as well as trade and sustainable development issues.

About the evaluation of the Agreement

After several years of implementation, an evaluation study is currently under way to analyse the economic, social, human rights (including labour rights) and environmental impacts of the implementation of the Agreement. The purpose is to identify areas of strong performance, as well as opportunities to improve the implementation of the Agreement

More information about the evaluation is available from a dedicated evaluation study website LINK.

About this survey

The purpose of the present consultation is to seek inputs to the evaluation study. All citizens, organisations and public authorities, regardless of where they are located, are welcome to participate in this survey.

Please note that a separate questionnaire for businesses is available – if you are responding on behalf of a business, including an SME, please (also) participate in the business survey LINK.

The questionnaire is available in English, Spanish, French and German. Completing it should take no more than 20 minutes.

If you wish to add further information (such as a position paper), you can do so at the end of the questionnaire.

The survey will be available online until xxxxxx.

[Note: Red text indicates questions; black text response options, and green text guidance on the flow of questions.]

ANNEX C: QUESTIONNAIRE FOR BUSINESS SURVEY

Business survey on the implementation and impact of the Trade Agreement between the EU and its Member States and Colombia, Peru and Ecuador

Questionnaire: DRAFT, 19 June 2020

A. Introduction

About the Trade Agreement

Since 2013, the European Union (EU) has a Trade Agreement with Colombia and Peru in place, which Ecuador joined in 2017. The Agreement gradually opens up markets on both sides and increases the stability and predictability of the trade and investment environment. It is also one of the first “new generation” trade agreements of the EU, characterised by their comprehensive scope. In addition to liberalisation of trade in goods and services, the Agreement covers investment, public procurement, competition, intellectual property rights, as well as trade and sustainable development issues.

About the evaluation of the Agreement

After several years of implementation, an evaluation study is currently under way to analyse the economic, social, human rights (including labour rights) and environmental impacts of the implementation of the Agreement. The purpose is to identify areas of strong performance as well as opportunities for improvement in the implementation of the Agreement.

More information about the evaluation is available from a dedicated evaluation study website LINK.

About this survey

The purpose of the present consultation is to understand how businesspeople see the Agreement, its implementation and its effects both on businesses in general and on their own business specifically. SMEs are particularly welcome to fill in the survey.

If you would like to provide your views on the wider effects of the Agreement, please also participate in the general survey: LINK.

The questionnaire is available in English and Spanish; responses can be provided in any EU official language. Completing the questionnaire should take no more than 20 minutes.

If you wish to add further information (such as a position paper or letter), you can do so at the end of the questionnaire.

The survey will be available online until xxxxxx.

[Note: Red text indicates questions; black text response options, and green text guidance on the flow of questions.]
